A Complicated Case Cured to Stay Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Neuralgia in any form is painful but when it attacks the heart it is frequent-ly fatal. Complicated with indigestion of a form that affected the vital organ it threatened serious consequences in an instance just reported. The case is that of Mr. F. L. Graves, of Pleasanthill, La., who tells of his trouble and cure as follows:

"I traveled considerably, was ex-posed to all kinds of weather and was posed to all kinds of weather and was irregular in my sleeping and eating. I suppose this was the cause of my sickness, at any rate, in May, 1905, I had got so bad that I was compelled to quit work and take to my bed. I had a good doctor and took his medicine faithfully but gridw works. but grew worse. I gave up hope of getting better and my neighbors thought I was surely going to die, "I had smothering spells, that it is awful to recall. My heart fluttered and

OF DIVORCE DECREES

U. S. Supreme Court Decision in Haddock Case Creates Consternation.

GROUNDS ARE VERY SIMPLE.

Defendant Must be in Court's Jurisdiction or Crime Committed Within It.

Chleago, April 18 .- A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington says: There is no doubt that the decision of the United States supreme court, handed down Monday, will rip open thousands of divorecs which were supposed to be binding by all parties to them. It will dissolve all marriages made by parties to such divorces aftermade by parties to such divorces afterwards, and all children of those subsequent marriages will become illegitimate, and will be unable to inherit property from their parents.

The decision of the United States supreme court, revolutionary though it may seem, is extremely simple in its actual bearing. In the first place, it must be understood that it does not concern any divorce case whatsoever where there has been actual service upon the defendant and where the defendant actually has appeared in court endant actually has appeared in cour a person or by an attorney. It does not concern any divorce case whether the defendant is present in court or not, when the offense for which di-voice is granted was committed with in the jurisdiction of the court.

The decision of the supreme court expressed in the briefest possible form,

That no court can grant a valid di vorce unless the defendant is personal ly within the jurisdiction of the court r unless the offense for which a di-orce is grafited was committed within the jurisdiction of the court.

it is easy to see how widespread will be the effect of this decision. Every husband and wife who has secured a divorce h; one state for an offense committed in another in which the defendants still reside, is married still in the state where he or she nad his her original domicile.

The decision does not absolutely an nul divorce, nor does it absolutely annul any subsequent mariages, nor rectly illegitimatize the children. livorce, the subsequent marriage, and the rights of the children can only be attacked, apparently, by subsequent proceedings on the part of the party to the original marriage who was not consulted and who took no part in the divorce proceedings.

That is to say, one state is not bound to accept the decree of a divorce court in another state unless that decree was found as the result of a complete jurisdiction of the defendant or the ofense. Of course if the defendant does not subsequently appeal to the original decree stands, because no one else has a right to question it.

In all these cases, therefore, where what are known as "Dakota divorces" are not contested they will stand, the defendant, whether man or woman has died, they will stand, and the property rights of the new wife and children will not be interfered with.

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me.
